It was currently reported to-day that seven negroes, caught in the act of looting houses last night, were shot to death, while this is not confirmed, it is known that there was heavy firing on the North Side early last night, where these negroes are said to have been killed.
The deaths of John Coolish, a Polish carpenter, and his three children—two boys, aged five and seven, respectively and a girl of twelve—were caused by trying to save three kegs of beef. The ledies were recovered to-day.

WORK OF RESCUE.
As fast as seows could be secured they were launched and volunteers started on rescue missions. A company of naval respress from Allon, which had rowed to the city yesterday, rendered splendid service in rescue duty. Rescuers began were as soon as it was light enough to see and continued their work far into the night. Word was sent out generally to-day and the government responded through United States District Attorney Dyer, in St. Louis, who issued an order to confiscate all the boats in St. Louis, regardless of owners, and rush them to East St. Louis. The St. Louis Fire Department at once tendered its heae and coal wagons and the boats were brought to the desolated city.

REFUSE TO LEAVE.

When boats were rowed alongside homes where the occupants were marouned in second stories and on roofs in the great majority of cases, the eccupants could not be induced to leave. They said that to leave meant that their beologings would be left to the mercy of river thieves, and they would remain and stand guard. Strangely the women were most unwilling to be rescued, although some of them were in terror. They were assured that a thorough bost patrol would be established with orders to kill rived thieves; on sight, and finally the unwilling householders were recruded to go to land. As wives entered the boats that were too full to carry husbands or children, and were sent ahead, they went and clasped each other in abject fear, some farther calamity might separate them forever. At the landings weeping women were assisted from the boats and throughout the day scores of boats rescued hundreds of refugees.

In the eastern extremity of the city at Washington Place and Rock road, on a vacent area on high ground, two hundred tents were utilized in erecting Camp Refugee, and a commissary was established. From the Broadway landing to Camp Refugee the flood sufferers were transported in wagons. Each family was given a tent. The City Hall, churches, school buildings and other structures were thrown open and temporarily turned into relief stations.

Attorney T. E. Dempsey, who has charge of Camp Refugee said to-night. "We must have food. East St. Louis is cut off from sources of supply, and what she had was largely drawn upon during the past week. Large amounts of tood were destroyed by the water has hight, and we are in need of additional food to care for the suffering people. The viaduct is marfe and wagons cannot reach St. Louis, Rallroad traffic is cut off, and the situation confronting us igneed manner, or people already in distress will suffer more."

Another Fear.

As n

lared that the street could not stand pressure without giving way. The lef that the water was rising was firmed by the St. Louis government an influx of curious people. At both ends of the bridge ropes were stretched and police were stationed with orders to allow no ingress into the city of spectators, who would only hinder the work of rescue. East St. Louis was practically shut off from the world. Even refugees who wanted to go to St. Louis were stopped, and unless they could show that they were sure of being taken care of by friends they were turned back to the relief committee of the city.

PRACTICAL MARTIAL LAW.

Protographers with small cameras were feat with unceremoniously. Guns were given to guards to patrol the streets, on which furniture was stacked, and to patrol the leves. Any thieves or possible leves cutters are to be shot down instantly. Martial law has not been proclaimed officially, but East St. Louis is practically being governed under such a condition during the flood, and there is no place for unscrupulous persons.

A few hours before the break in the leves early to-day Ned Roberts, a negro, employed as a leves builder, was killed by members of the leves patrol for attempting to tear down a portion of the dyke. His act was caused by anger, herause he was not allowed to draw his pay at once.

When the break occurred warnings were first sent through the Dexter addition by messengers, who discharged firearms, blew horns and shouted the news of the flood arrival. Lights gleamed in houses where the occupants had retired, in confidence that the embankments would hold. Persons scantily attired emerged from their homes, and in a few moments the whole populace of the low district, six miles in area, were fleeling to higher ground.

INTENSE TERROR.

As the noise of the approaching flood was heard the flight at first a rapid retreat, with more semblance of order, assumed a panic stage. All efforts to assure the inhabitants that there was sufficient time to escape unless a gap was washed through the embankment failed to convince them, and most of them field without any effort to save property. Messengers were sent to the main portion of the city, telling of the danger from the new point of attack, and the

A Perfect Rush to Obtain Records of American and Na-Charters in Virginia. tional Leagues.

Charters Cost Less than They Do In the Mosquito State-A Handsome Revenue Will Certainly Ba Derived.

Virginia promises to be a field for corporate enterprise to a greater extent than ever before. Indeed, as soon as it is realized that corporations can be chartered and operated in this State at less expense than in the State of New Jersey, there will be a rush for charters, which will add many dollars in fees to the treasury of the State.

Jersey has of recent years been regarded as the domicile of large corporations and the home of the trusts, but it is a fact that a corporation expecting to do business in Virginia for five years en be chartered and will pay less money therefor than if chartered under the laws of New Jersey.

Under the operation of the new State Corporation. Commission the foreign corporations must pay as much to do business in this State as it costs a domestic corporation to get a charter. At one time it was thought by some that the laws on this subject would operate to the disadvantage of domestic corporations, but Secretary Upshur is authority for the statement that this is not the Aiready, in about a month's time, one

An application has been received by the commission for a charter for the Shaner-Thurman Vehicle Corporation, of Lynchburg, with A. M. Shaner, Alexander Thurman and A. F. Thomas as corporators. The capital stock shall be not less than $10,000 nor more than $25,000. The manufacture and sale of vehicles are the objects of the company.

ENGINES CRASH

Some Damage Resulted, but There Was No Loss of Life.

A head-on collision occurred near A head-on collision occurred near Manteo, on the James River Division of the Chesapaake, and Ohio Railway, on Tuesday, in which local passenger train No. 9, leaving this city at 10:39 A. M., crashed into a shifting engine. The smokestack and pilot of the passenger engine was badly damaged, and the shifting engine pretty badly battered up. The clash occurred about $230 in the attornoon. The track was blocked for several hours and the train delayed. The passengers were slightly shaken up and given a good scare. Just how the accident occurred could not be learned from the passengers on the local train, through whom information reached this city to-day.

Some New Arrivals.

Among the arrivals at the Jefferson last night were Hon. J. Allen Watts and Miss Jonnie Watts, of Roanoke; Jack Henderson, of Orange; Mrs. S. Marcus, of Gordonsville, and Mrs. Robert Marcus, of Hamton; E. P. Jacobs and James R. Terry, of Roanoke.
P. R. Walters, of Liverpool, and M. J. Moore and wife, of Texas, are registered at the Jefferson.

Delegates to the various conventions in the city, who are stopping at the Jefferson, were entertained during the rainstorm last night in the parlor of the hotel by some of the party with sleight-of-hand tricks and other amusements. At the Lexington Hotel & the the Virginians: William C. Hanckel, of Charlottesville; Manly Broaddy, of Caroline; T. E. Roberts, Jr., of Chase City.

Mr. Monroe M. Hill, representative from Georgia, left Richmond in 1854 for Atlanta, and this is his first visit to his old home since that faraway date. He is a native of this city and was connected with some of the old newspapers of Richmond. For about three years he was deputy formeman of the Richmond Dispatch. He is now foreman of a large printing office in Atlanta.

now foreman of a large printing office in Atlanta.

Another old Richmonder who is coming back home with the Knights is Colonel Thomas J. Appleyard, of Lake City, Fla. What is best known of Colonel Appleyard is told admirably by Sidney Herbert in a recent issue of the Morning News of Bavannah: "And all this prompts me to say a good word for Colonel Thomas J. Appleyard, of the Lake City Index, who is going back to his native city of Richmond. Va., as a delegate to the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Honor, a position he has ably held for four terms, yet two terms is the rule. He is, or has been colonel of the Uniform Rank in Florida, and as secretary of the Florida State Senate and Press Association for years, he has become one of the best known and most popular men in the State. As a boy in Richmond he entered the C. S. N., and was among the bracet of the boy soldiers of that day. After the war ho was a printer in Columbus, Ga., where he married his present estimable wife. That was thirty years agg, and I have known him ever since and can testify that his big hody encases a disc heart. He left Richmond in 1871, and he goes back, full of years and honors' to visit the scenes of his youth and renew old friendships. And he carries with him one of the brightest of reary circles as a young writer of verse and prose with a bright future."
